

Julie Stuhlsatz is a wife and mother of 2 sons. She lives in Great Bend, Ks, which due to its geographical location, means she is in the “middle of everything.” She attended Barton County Community College and Kansas State University. When her eldest son was diagnosed with severe dyslexia, she took it upon herself to begin home schooling and searching for answers to help him. She and her son started traveling monthly to Santa Fe, NM to work with a Behavioral Optometrist whose exercises and activities not only changed her son’s life but also sent her on a new career path, changing her life as well. With the doctor’s permission and guidance, Julie began providing these same exercises and activities to children with learning and behavioral struggles in her community. During COVID, Julie discovered that one-on-one zoom sessions with child and parent were just as effective as her one-on-one face to face sessions. Besides training from the doctor, Julie has also received instructional training from Learning RX and certifications in Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, Child Development Associate, Retained Primitive Reflexes, Visual Therapy for Children with Special Needs and is currently enrolled and completing course work for RBT Certification.
